Low-income community housing refers to affordable housing options that are available to individuals and families with low incomes [1]. These housing options are typically subsidized by the government or non-profit organizations and are designed to provide safe and affordable housing to those who might not otherwise be able to afford it [1].

There are several organizations in Johnson City, Tennessee that offer affordable housing options for low-income individuals and families. Some of these organizations include:

1. Eastern Eight Community Development Corporation: A non-profit organization that creates affordable housing solutions for the eight counties of Northeast Tennessee [2].
2. Johnson City Housing Authority: A local housing authority that has been serving Washington County, Tennessee, for more than 50 years [3].
3. Watauga Square: An apartment community designed with comfort and convenience in mind, offering affordable housing options [4].

If you're interested in finding more information about low-income community housing options in Johnson City, you can check with your local government or non-profit organizations that specialize in affordable housing [1] [7].

I hope this helps. Is there anything else I can help you with?
